GamuT D3i dual-mono preamplifier

The GamuT D3i dual-mono preamplifier ($8390) uses the MOSFET technology GamuT pioneered in its power amplifiers to eliminate crossover distortion. It sports a non-magnetic chassis, internally shielded separate power supplies for each channel, high bandwidth and low impedance. Additionally, the D3i can accept GamuT's new phonostage. In a mostly all-GamuT system with the company's M250i monoblock amplifiers, Zodiac speakers, and Reference cables, Gary Karr's string bass sounded very natural and extended, and had excellent focus. Moreover, I couldn't hear any background noise. Nice!
